Gateway to Work FAQs

Q: What if I have an exemption that is not listed in my HIP member data?

A: In most cases, the state will determine that a member is exempt based on information already on file, such as age, medical claims and employment status. However, some exemptions are based on information that the state does not already have. If a member meets an exemption, the member can contact their health plan to discuss. The member will be required to document their exemption with the health plan who may then update the member's status.

The state is also developing Gateway to Work partnerships throughout the state. These partners will understand the program and have resources available to help members, including reporting requirements.

Q: How will I report my hours?

A: You can report your hours:

- Online – using the member portal found at www.hip.in.gov on your phone or desktop computer

Gateway to Work FAQs

Q: If I don't meet the requirements, does my whole family lose coverage or just me?

A: If one member of a household does not meet the Gateway to Work requirements, only that member will be suspended from HIP coverage. Anyone else in the house who is covered by HIP or another Indiana Health Coverage Program, such as Hoosier Healthwise, will maintain their benefits.

Q: What happens if I don't want to participate or don't meet the requirements?

A: Members who are required to participate in Gateway to Work and choose not to participate or do not achieve the required number of hours for at least eight months in a calendar year may have their HIP coverage suspended. If a member becomes suspended, the Gateway to Work staff will work with the member to meet the participation requirements so their HIP benefits can be restored.

Q: Can my HIP benefits be suspended or terminated monthly?

A: No, Gateway to Work is a calendar year program. Throughout the year a member may be required to participate in Gateway to Work activities and report them. At the end of each year, a member's success in meeting the requirements for each month will be reviewed. Benefits may be suspended starting January 1 for anyone who does not meet their requirement for the previous year.

Q: Will online classes, internships or apprenticeships count?

A: Yes, all of these activities would be considered qualifying activities.

Q: Can I volunteer anywhere or only at specific locations?

A: Members can volunteer anywhere. Gateway to Work will have partners statewide to provide opportunities for members to participate in volunteer activities around their community.

Q: What if I get sick and can't work?

A: If a member becomes ill or injured for an extended period of time, the member may qualify for an exemption from the work requirement for the month(s) in which the illness or injury affects them. If this occurs, the member would need to contact their health plan.

Q: What sort of documentation will I need to provide?

A: Members can self-attest to all qualifying activities. They may provide documentation but it is not required. Some form of documentation is required for all exemptions. Contact your health plan for questions regarding what documentation is required.

Q: When will I receive more information about the program?

A: More information on Gateway to Work will come from the state and your health plan later this year. The HIP website (www.hip.in.gov) will also be kept up-to-date as additional information becomes available.
