

The Indiana State Medical Association exists to maximize physician impact. We provide physicians with the benefits, education and tools to thrive personally and professionally – at all stages of practice.

The ISMA Resident/Fellow Society (RFS) was established in 1984. The knowledge and experience of physicians in training is essential to improving public policy, and, ultimately, driving the future of health care. By getting involved in the advocacy process through the RFS, residents and fellows can ensure Indiana remains a favorable state for practicing medicine throughout their careers while protecting physician-led care for the benefit of patients.

Proven Legislative Advocacy

RFS is a voice on medical issues to protect you, your profession and your patients from harmful legislation, including efforts to weaken physician leadership of health care teams.

Opportunities to Shape Policy

RFS members can submit resolutions that could become part of ISMA's policy positions and help drive changes in state laws or regulations.

Opportunities to Learn and Lead

- Become a Residency Program Liaison on our statewide team of residents and fellows who share an interest in health care advocacy and leadership.
- Leadership and networking opportunities at local, state and national levels.
- Flat-fee employment contract reviews.
- Wellness resources for resiliency and work-life balance.
- Answers to business, legal and regulatory questions.
- Free CME on opioid addiction, COVID-19, financial management and more.
- Timely, topical member newsletters, e-alerts and social media.

Be part of the next generation of physician leaders and advocates!

RFS membership is just $50 for the duration of residency or fellowship.

Some programs cover this membership cost, or you can use your CME funds; check with your program coordinator to learn more.
