

Dear Colleagues,

I am pleased to announce my candidacy for Treasurer of the Indiana State Medical Association.

My involvement in organized medicine has reinforced for me how important a strong ISMA is to physicians across Indiana. At a time when the practice of medicine is changing rapidly, we need an organization that not only advocates effectively for physicians and our patients but also has the financial strength and strategic vision to sustain that work for years to come.

I am a practicing family physician and currently serve as President of ISMA District 12. I also serve on the Fort Wayne Medical Society Board of Directors, where I previously served as Treasurer. In addition, I hold an MBA, which has provided me with valuable experience and perspective in financial management, organizational strategy, and responsible stewardship of resources.

I was honored when colleagues encouraged me to consider serving as ISMA Treasurer. After reflecting on the opportunity, I believe my combination of clinical experience, physician leadership, direct experience in medical society financial stewardship, and business training would allow me to contribute meaningfully to ISMA in this role.

If elected, I will approach the position with a commitment to thoughtful financial stewardship, transparency, and long-term sustainability. ISMA's resources should support its mission, strengthen our advocacy, engage physicians throughout Indiana, and position our organization to respond to the challenges and opportunities ahead.

Most importantly, I believe leadership in organized medicine is about service. I would be honored to serve our members as Treasurer and to work alongside ISMA's physician leaders, delegates, and staff to ensure our organization remains strong and effective.

I respectfully ask for your support and would welcome the opportunity to serve as your next ISMA Treasurer.

Stephanie Kidd, DO, MBA
President, ISMA District 12
